

FLAGSTAFF HOUSE,
ACCRA,
GHANA.

5th November, 1965.

My dear Brother, colleague,

Now that the Conference is over, I wish to send you this brief message of thanks and appreciation for your contribution to the success of the O.A.U. Summit Conference held in Accra. The atmosphere of mutual understanding and harmony which animated all our discussions is a happy augury for the future of our continent.

I feel sure also that the sincere and frank manner in which we discussed and examined the problems affecting the welfare of our people, has helped us in no small measure to lay a firm foundation for the progress and prosperity of Africa and for the peace of the world.

In the name of the Government and people of Ghana, I would like again to say how happy we were to have had you here with us in Ghana, and to express the hope that through our joint endeavours we shall realise in our life-time the true aspirations of our people and help to establish the glory and destiny of Africa.

Please accept, my dear Brother, the assurances of my highest esteem and fraternal consideration.

Yours very sincerely,

Kwame Nkrumah

His Excellency Dr. Kamuzu Banda,
