Washington, March 5th, 1882.

My dear Sir,

Although I understood the case perfectly from my friend Jordan's explanation, your courteous letter of the 23^d ult. is no less appreciable. I cannot deny that the misunderstanding was a little awkward for me, as you may readily perceive, but it has probably troubled me less after all than it may have either Jordan or yourself, both of whom I beg not to let the matter be one of the slightest embarrassment. I have substituted a course of lectures in this city, and look forward with pleasure to the arrangement proposed, if practicable, for next Fall.

With respect & regards,

Very truly Yours

Elliot Cress.
