

Amherst College,

Amherst, Mass., Sep 21st, 1883.

President Moss;

Dear Sir:

Yours of the 18th inst. is received.

Our new buildings are a very important addition to our College means and we have endeavored to build them with a wise outlook for both the present and the future, but none of the designs, or plans, or specifications, have ever been published and I regret that I am unable to send you anything of this sort. It would give me great pleasure could I serve you in this respect.

Very truly yours,

Julius H. Seelye
