

THE INDIANA UNIVERSITY LAW SCHOOL,
BLOOMINGTON, IND.

1. Christopher E. Langdell, LL.D.

Dean Harvard Law School

[Harvard Law School methods are peculiar and do not meet the general approval of teachers. The system consists in a study of cases. There are great and obvious advantages in this system, but it seems to me to be begun too early and pushed too far by Harvard men.]

2. Francis Wayland

Dean Yale Law School.

[The graduate dept of Yale Law School is one of the best, and ought to supply a good teacher.]

3. Wm. A. Keener

Dean Columbia Law School, N.Y. City.

[Columbia Law School has always ranked among the very best; but it has recently been re-organized by Keener, who is a Harvard man, who follows the Harvard methods.]

4. George Chase

Dean New York Law School, N.Y. City.

[Chase is an old Columbia professor who has started this school as a protest against the "Harvardizing" of Columbia. He is a disciple of Theodore Dwight, the former dean of Columbia.]

5. Harry B. Hutchins

Associate Dean of Cornell Law School,
Ithaca, N.Y.

6. Edmund H. Bennett

Dean of Boston Univ. Law School
Boston, Mass.
