

BLOOMINGTON, INDIANA, June 10. 1891.

Dear Concler,

I have told Masters that his presence for some part of first year is very desirable, and have suggested that he spend second and third terms at Cornell, coming here the first.

I have asked Nichols (whose judgment on men in Physics. I should place as high as that of any man in the country) to mention men in Physics.

I have heard large

praise of Snorr, and would look him up especially.

He has a sister, ^{Professor} an Coates' College at Terre Haute.

Very truly yours,
David S. Jordan.

The Wabash people make a mistake in not taking Dudley. At last accounts, he belonged to Cong. Church.

He is a thorough Christian gentleman one of the purest men I know, and has no ordinary theological or any sort. ...
