To the Faculty of Indiana University - 1, '88, 12:05 P.M.

Gentlemen:

We find it hard to express ourselves properly with regard to the unexpected and undeserved evidence of your kind regard, as expressed by your committee, Messrs Kirkwood, Clark and von Jagemann, on the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of our marriage, an expression, however, met by words only, but by a tangible, and useful, and beautiful token of your regard. Golden as well as living eagles, have wings, and can soon fly away, but the golden vase, we hope will remain in the family, a valued heirloom
